The largest fabric sourcing event for the North American market, Texworld USA, co-located with Apparel Sourcing USA, will take place July 22—24, at the Javits Convention Center in New York City, New York. This edition welcomes an exciting educational line up with a spotlight on sustainability, and will also cover topics including circularity, traceability, and how to stay relevant in the current state of the industry.

"Originally a buzz word in the industry, the trendy topic of sustainability started popping up a couple of years ago, and now, more and more global companies are catching on. It's necessary and it's everywhere. And just like anything, it's all about consumer education. With the mass amounts of resources and information available showing how the apparel industry negatively contributes to the problem, consumers want sustainable solutions," states Jennifer Bacon, Show Director of Texworld USA / Apparel Sourcing USA.

Bacon continues, "Companies know sustainability practices are not just an option, but a requirement in the future, but some are confused about how to achieve this. Our educational platform aims to address this matter by explaining how to improve internal processes and systems like a direct to consumer business model, how to become sustainable-certified, and much more."

This summer's program is designed to offer insightful and informative sessions for every role and level of experience across every segment of the industry.

Summer 2019 Texworld USA / Lenzing Innovation Seminar Series
Highlights:

Doing Business in Africa: Trade and Sourcing

The African continent is a rapidly developing apparel market with Morocco, Egypt, Jordan, and the AGOA beneficiary countries topping the list for sourcing executives. What's the latest on this emerging region in light of trade tensions, tariffs, and sustainability considerations? Listen in as a panel of experts share their thoughts on the future of the area for apparel and the range of factors companies should consider when evaluating these countries.

Trend Tales & Street Tribes Fall/Winter 2020 by MintModa

MintModa digs deep to uncover the drivers — emotional, aesthetic, cultural, historic — behind the trends. Each Trend Tale is also complete with actionable key items, must-have fabrics/prints and color palettes that will inspire relevant and desirable apparel and accessories for Fall-Winter 20 and beyond.

How to Create Material Change

Most product's impact comes from the raw material stage. Robust sustainability goals must start with an understanding of where impacts are highest and how to improve. There are fibers and materials that can help deliver on sustainability goals and industry-leading standards to help verify the content of the products. Join Sourcing Journal for this session to learn more about the impact of today's most-used and loved fibers and how to get started on a better material strategy.

Textile Talks and Explore the Floor are educational opportunities presented on the show floor. Textile Talks are interactive sessions are created to address the current issues facing the industry, from supply chain changes to the impact of environmental textile trends
